STRAITSVILLE IS OBJECT OF DRY CAMPAIGN

State and Federal Men
Out to Break Perry-co
Booze Rings

PRICE GOES HIGHER

Results Have Been Shown
In Past Few Weeks

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 7.—A sudden drive to "nag up" the picturesque mine hide-outs of the New Straitsville hill country, long the whiskey-manufacturing center of southern Ohio, has been started by state and federal agents.

Forces of the two prohibited departments have been combined to conduct a series of raids on the stills, hidden deep in the hill foliage or far back in longago abandoned mine properties, have operated, almost untested, for several years.

5 STILL TAKEN

Although the campaign has only started, five giant stills and nine reputed whiskey-manufacturers have been brought out of the hills of southern Perry-co to federal court here in only a short time, state and federal authorities revealed.

Frightened by the surprise raids, many of the distillers have abruptly halted operations, and prices of the New Straitsville whiskey, one of the best known Ohio bottled products, have soared to unexpected peaks, it was said.

Other bootleggers are complaining that the manufacture has been so seriously reduced that the New Straitsville brand is not available at any price, according to reports here.

Seven men and youth arrested within the last month have been bound over to await action by the federal grand jury and two others, arrested in a raid Tuesday, have not yet been given a hearing.

Two stills, 1000 gallons of beer, 50 gallons of liquor and an automobile were seized in a raid at the Gem mine near New Straitsville Tuesday when Edmund Spies, 24, and William Spies, 21, were arrested.

YOUTHS ARE HELD

James Richardson, 19, a high school graduate was captured two nights earlier. Two companions escaped but authorities ventured the suggestion that boys are "taking the rap" for the veteran owners.

The Spies brothers were arrested after they were seen removing a barrel of alleged liquor from the Gem mine to an automobile, inspectors said. And were charged with possession, transportation and manufacture of whiskey—enough charges, in the opinion of officials, "to hold them for a while."

Plans for the attack on the New Straitsville area were conceived jointly by Deputy State Commissioner E. C. Mathews and Richard M. Haynes, head of the federal prohibition office here.

Mathews and Haynes said they decided, in conference, that "there is nothing sacred about New Straitsville" and that an attempt should be made to enforce the law there as much as anywhere else in the state.

Why the New Straitsville section was not previously troubled much by prohibition agent was not disclosed but arrests there in the past have not been frequent until lately, it was understood.

ARMY TO ABOLISH COLUMBUS 'PORT'

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 7.—Unless the city of Columbus provides space in the municipal hangar at Port Columbus, the army will abolish its base, now located at Norton field, next June 20 when the federal lease expires, according to an ultimatum laid down today by Major Frank M. Kennedy, in charge of building and construction projects of the U. S. army air force.

Major Kennedy, who left here last night for Washington to report to Brig. Gen. James E. Pecheb, chief of the army air service, made his announcement to city council.

"It will be a case of moving to Port Columbus or total discontinuance," he said.

Rule Is Difficult

Governor Paul M. Pearson (above), of the Virgin Islands, is reported having some difficulty in administering the new civil government in the islands, although Washington adds that it is too early to decide whether it is a success or failure. Governor Pearson took over the civil government from naval officials last March.

HITS POLE TO EVADE AUTOS

Accelerator on Greenlee's Cattle Truck Sticks, North of Portsmouth.

Dale Wilson, S. Pickaway-st., escaped injury Thursday afternoon, on the Scioto Trail, several miles north of Portsmouth, when the accelerator on a cattle truck owned by Beryl Greenlee, Wilson-ave, stuck and in an attempt to escape hitting several other autos on the road, he ran into the ditch hitting a telephone pole, damaging the truck. Wilson was not injured, suffering only bruises and scratches.

Wilson, along with Emmett Greenlee, also of here, driving another truck was returning from Portsmouth where he had taken a load of cattle, when the accident occurred.

The radiator was smashed, fenders were bent and other damage was done to the truck.

The damaged truck was brought to this city for repairs.

MILLER SAYS HART KILLER

Prosecutor Says He's Certain
Gang Lord Was One of Trigger-men.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 7.—Prosecutor Ray T. Miller, who last week began a renewed and thorough probe into the murder of former Councilman William E. Potter, today startled court attaches with the declaration that "I am convinced that Solly Hart was one of the triggermen in the Potter murder."

The statement came after Mark Houston, 18, a leading witness in the trial of Hyman Martin for the murder repudiated his previous affidavit which said he saw a man resembling Hart enter the Parkwood Drive murder apartment a few days before the murder.

The prosecutor declared that "notwithstanding Houston's repudiation the investigation of Hart in connection with the Potter killing will continue. We will spare nothing to get the truth."

Hart, reputed gang lord, is being held in jail under $125,000 bond on five felon charges.

PROF. MARTEN IS ROTARY SPEAKER

Using the members of the Rotary Club as his class in Philosophy, Prof. Herbert Marten, gave an interesting and instructive talk at their Thursday meeting.

Prof. Marten, being well versed on this subject, had the members listening attentively to every word of his talk. With his illustrations and vivid explanations on matters pertaining to "Relativity" his talk gave the Rotarians better conception of this subject.

Prof. Marten's visit to Pickaway County is always looked forward to by Rotarians and each year he gives them something worth listening to and as an "Inventive Philosopher," as he chose to call himself Tuesday.

Edict to Save Reich Gold to Hurt U. S. to Extent of 20 Millions

MANY ITEMS IN LIST

Soviet System Employed
by Europe Nation

BERLIN, Aug. 7.—Drastic curtailment of German imports, seriously affecting American trade, was decided upon by the German government today as a means of preventing outflow of gold from the Reich.

Losses to American producers from the curtailment will approximate $200,000,000 a year, according to current reports. Heated protests against the edict already have been launched by a number of prominent American exporters.

While "full official" announcement of the curtailment order not yet been made, it is understood the government had declared a virtual embargo on a large number of foreign products, ranging from foodstuffs and other necessities to luxury items.

Conspicuous among the commodities reported to have been singled out for exclusion were automobiles, motorcycles, machinery, office equipment, wool, woven fabrics, cosmetics, crepe de chine, lumber and foodstuffs, of which Germany alone imported $68,000,000 worth in 1930.

The edict also struck a blow at the new German woman of fashion, prohibiting the importation of Paris gowns.

The curtailment order virtually amounts to institution of a Soviet system of foreign trade monopoly, whereby everything that is not absolutely necessary is banned from importation.

The government was prompted to take this drastic measure by fears inflation might result if continued outward flow of gold were encouraged by unrestricted importation of foreign goods.

LOSE 20 MILLION

In lodging protests against the order, representatives of some American exporters maintained that $200,000,000 as an annual loss to the United States was a conservative figure.

Revelation of the government's decision followed close on the heels of an agreement reached between German officials and United States Ambassador Frederic Sackett, whereby the Reich will take advantage of President Hoover's offer and buy 600,000 bales of cotton at low prices on a three-year credit basis.

MERCURY IS LOWER

Although high temperatures will prevail Friday the thermometer will not top the 94 degree mark of Thursday according to Dr. H. R. Clarke, weather observer.

The temperature at noon today was 88 degrees and it was expected to reach the 90 mark.

Low temperature early Friday morning was 56.

"The heat is very oppressive and there is no sign of rain, as shown by the stirring of winds in any direction," Dr. Clarke says.

BRANNON FREED

Don Brannon, well-known local boxer, has been released from the county jail, following his arrest Wednesday evening by Officer William McCrady, at the Nazarene Camp Meeting, S. Washington-st., where he was alleged to have been raising a disturbance and causing trouble.

At a local dairy plant here, over 2,700 milk bottles are placed on the porches of residents and delivered to stores every day and at least 75 and more often 100 bottles never return to the plant. Each bottle represents a loss of nearly five cents and with 100 bottles broken, never returned or destroyed in some other manner, a $5 loss is incurred by the milk supplying establishment.

USED 15 TIMES

The average milk bottle never serves its purpose over ten or fifteen times as the result of careless handling and consumers refusing to return it to its owner, according to the dairyman who did not wash his name to be made known.

"If milk consumers do not assure a better and more appreciative attitude toward the milk bottle which is the most sanitary container in which milk can be delivered, many dairy plants will refuse to incur the expense of buying bottles and begin delivering milk in paper containers. In some of the larger cities this is being done today," the dairyman asserted.

"Before being filled now, every bottle must be thoroughly sterilized and in a sanitary condition before it is delivered, but in the case of a paper container which will be assumed to be clean, sterilized and sanitary right through its machine manufacture, consumers will not be assured that the milk will be in fine condition. Of course the paper container would have to be as sanitary and up to standard as far as health requirements are concerned, but you know 'mistakes will happen,'" the dairyman concluded.

At the particular dairy plant visited, several car-loads of 10,000 bottles each are purchased every

Man Without a Country

Peter Russell, the man without a country, is shown at night listening to Immigration Inspector Joseph V. Mitchell, at Boston, denying him permission to land in this country on the ground Russell is a British subject. The British authorities, however, have just returned him to this country as an American citizen. Now that both countries refuse him, Russell may be forced to spend his life on the ocean. He is a fireman on the S. S. Winona County, out of Liverpool.

DOHERTY FIGHTS KANSAS CITY STAR; BUYS OPPOSITION PAPER

Cities Service Co. President to Wage War Against Newspaper
He Charges With Fighting His Company; Has Already Filed Suit For 12 Millions Charging Libel.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—An announcement was made at the office of Henry L. Doherty, oil magnate, here today, that he had purchased a half interest in the Kansas City Journal-Post.

The announcement stated that the newspaper interest was purchased "in order to meet the Kansas City Star on an equal footing in its campaign against him and the interests of Cities Service Company and its security holders."

The announcement given out here said that the purchase was announced in the columns of the Journal-Post with publication of a letter sent by Doherty on Aug. 2 to three trustees of the Star, J. C. Nichols, Herbert B. Jones and former Governor Arthur M. Hyde.

The Doherty announcement continued: "He (Doherty) states that 'unless the trustees assert that the present management of the Kansas City Star has breached their contract and that all payments are, therefore, due, and enforce their payments, that in the event of any loss on the unpaid portion, that the trustees will be held liable for this.'"

Doherty called on the trustees to expel the present management of the Star, asserting that the sale to the present management was illegal. The trustees were appointed by the terms of the will of the late Col. W. R. Nelson, owner of the paper until his death in 1915.

Doherty's announcement stated that he had not bought control of the Journal-Post. His contract, he stated, stipulates that ten percent of his half interest cannot be voted.

"He will act as special contributing editor with the right to have published as editorials anything he thinks proper," the announcement said. "He also has the right to buy advertising space at any time he sees fit for the publication of statements. Mr. Doherty takes full responsibility for both his editorials and paid statements, the provision being that they shall not be edited or censored."

Doherty filed suit against the Kansas City Star on July 10 for $12,000,000 damages, alleging libel.

Police Believe Gangster Trying to 'Bleed Bookies' To Fight Charges.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—In the kidnapping of William Flanagan, Gary, Ind., gambling king, authorities today saw a confirmation of persistent rumor that "Scarface" Al Capone is levying heavy tributes on bookmakers in order to raise a huge fund with which to fight his coming trial in the federal court.

Scores of Chicago bookmakers have been threatened with "rides" and kidnapping in recent weeks unless they contribute to the Capone war chest according to underworld reports.

POOR WATER SUPPLY IN OUTSKIRTS CITED

12 Families, Miss Southward Reports Existing on One Water Well

ACTION IS NEEDED

Benevolent Points Operations
Toward Winter

Scarcity of water supply among the poorer sections of the city is deplored in a report of Miss Clara Southward, social service worker of the Circleville Benevolent association, submitted at the monthly meeting this week. Miss Southward in her detailed report says there are numerous districts at the outskirts of the city which are not furnished sufficient water.

Miss Southward says of 28 families only one has city water. For the other, 27 families, there were originally six wells, but two of them have gone dry leaving but four wells to supply 27 families and approximately 135 persons. Twelve of these families, Miss Southward discloses, are using but one of the wells.

WATER IS CARRIED

This water has to be carried from the wells to the homes an average distance of one block. To supplement this supply there are only one cistern and one rain barrel in the district. There are other sections of the city as unfortunate as the one just described, according to Miss Southward's investigation.

Sanitary conditions are deplorable in this certain area and demand much further investigation.

Miss Southward reports 198 calls made during July with 42 interviews, 41 telephone calls, clothing distributed to 25 families and food for five families.

The efforts of the Benevolent association to aid family welfare have been continued during the summer and have disclosed a number of important issues, many interesting facts being shown.

BOOTH IS PLANNED

A committee of Mrs. Carl Ritz, Mrs. T. W. Brown and Mrs. Hulse Hays, was appointed to make plans for a lunch booth at the Pumpkin Show in an effort to raise funds.

While the association, which has done undescribeable good in its work in this city, has been carrying on through the summer, a real task is expected this winter. Last winter was one of the worst ever experienced in the city as far as demands upon social assistance were concerned and this winter expected to be even worse. With this object in mind the association is going about its tasks carefully spending where necessary and always making an effort to add more funds to its treasury for the good work which must go on.

THREE PLANES IN AIR CRASH

Two Pilots 'Bail Out' While
Third Rights His Plane
After Accident.

SELFRIDGE FIELD, Mich., Aug. 7.—A near tragedy occurred today when three army airplanes engaged in flight maneuvers, crashed in mid-air a mile east of here. Two of the ships were sent hurtling to the ground forcing the pilots to make parachute leaps to safety from a height of 4,000 feet.

The two aviators were slightly hurt. They are Lieutenant Robert W. Barnes of Madison, Wisconsin, and Lieutenant Kenneth Mosher, of Rockford, Illinois.

The third machine was righted by its pilot, Lieutenant Richard Crabb, of Orlando, Florida, and made a safe landing.

The accident occurred when the wing tip of Mosher's craft hit the propeller of the ship flown by Crabb. The impact threw Mosher's plane against Burns' ship and both pilots immediately abandoned the planes.

ASHVILLE WOMAN HURT IN CRASH

Mrs. William Black of Scioto-st., Ashville, was suffering from numerous cuts and bruises sustained at 5 p. m. Thursday when the automobile she was driving and the delivery truck of the Coon grocery of Ashville, driven by Porter Flowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Flowers, collided. The accident happened in front of the M. E. church in Ashville.

While Mrs. Black suffered numerous cuts and bruises, one cut being on her head, her most painful injury was on her left hand, a deep cut which required eight stitches to close.

Both cars were damaged considerably.

CRAMER FLIES TO ICELAND ON MYSTERY TRIP

Aviator, Thought Blazing
Air Mail Line, Thrills
Frigid Nation

BURNS OIL IN PLANE

Other News of Flyer
Around the World

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 7.—Mapping out a projected air mail route across the sub-Arctic region, Arthur Cramer, daring aviator, III, flyer, left Reykjavik at 2:15 p. m. local time this afternoon for the Faroe Islands.

The distance from Reykjavik to the Faroes is approximately 500 miles.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 7.—Another achievement of aeronautical science and, human skill was recorded today when Arthur Cramer, American aviator, brought his oil-burning monoplane down at this chilly northern capital after a seven-hour flight over the Atlantic from Angmagssalik, Greenland.

Cramer reached Reykjavik at 3:55 a. m. today (9:55 p. m. last night E. S. T.), having left Angmagssalik, at 2 p. m. yesterday (8 a. m. E. S. T.).

With Cramer was Oliver Pasquette, Canadian radio operator. The two started, unannounced, from Detroit, July 28 to trace a northeast air mail route to Copenhagen and central European points, via Greenland, Iceland and other intermediate points.

Although Cramer deposited $1,000 with the Greenland government some time ago to pay for a relief expedition in case he was forced down on the icy plateaus of that wasteland country, he took the world by surprise when he unexpectedly landed day before yesterday at Angmagssalik, a little town of Eskimos and a handful of white men on the east coast of Greenland.

ESTABLISHING LINK

The reason for the mystery connected with the flight has not been made known, but it was assumed that the air mail line wished to establish a service between Europe and America ahead of competitors.

One of the outstanding features of Cramer's flight from Detroit was the successful use of an oil-burning engine. All previous ocean flyers have used special flight gasoline, but Cramer used ordinary crude oil, such as that employed on ocean liners.

It was said that had he been forced down for lack of fuel at some remote, bee-hive-like igloo village, he could have continued to oil extracted from whale blubber. As crude oil is not so sensitive to cold, it was said that it may prove better for Arctic flyers than gasoline.

Lindberghs Plan To Leave Today

AKLAVIK, NORTHWEST TERRITORY, Aug. 7.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were to continue today on their vacation flight to Tokyo, the weather permitting.

Fog, rain and wind persisted yesterday and during the night to detain them in this northern outpost of civilization. The Mackenzie river was lashed to such fury that even a take-off in their amphibian plane would in itself have been hazardous.

Colonel Lindbergh expressed impatience at not being able to proceed to Nome, but indicated that he and his wife would take no unnecessary risks by flying under unfavorable conditions.

Upon the weather he said, would largely depend the route he would follow.

If possible, it appeared today, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh would probably hop from here to Cape Cape, where the U. S. Coast Guard cutter, Northland, blocked by fog and ice, holds the gas intended for the Lindbergh plane.

American Credit Structure Good

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The American retail credit structure so far has stood the test of depression in a highly satisfactory manner, commerce department officials said today, on the basis of preliminary data secured in a national survey of credit and installment sales trends for the first half of 1931.

Retailers in 25 leading cities of the country have been questioned as to their credit and collection experience of the past six months. The study is being made by the questionnaire method and the lines of trade being surveyed include department stores, furniture, jewelry, shoe, men's clothing, women's specialties and electrical appliance stores.

Further light as to the extent to which a prolonged disturbance of general business conditions affects credit payments and bad debt losses was expected to be shed by the six months record for the year, as compared with the corresponding period of 1930, when the shift from the relatively high levels of 1929 were being fully felt.

Previous semi-annual surveys of the kind in the retail credit field, covering the entire year 1930, have indicated that on the whole the American people were meeting their open credit and installment obligations in an orderly manner. New commitments were being assumed in very nearly the same proportion to cash sales as formerly, the surveys showed.

The current credit will present present comparable data covering open-credit and installment sales in proportion to total sales, collection percentages on both types of credit transactions, returns and allowances as percentage of gross sales, losses resulting from fraudulent buying, and passing of bad checks.

Data secured by the commerce department in the past has shown that the great percentage of the American buying public is honest and meets its obligations promptly. There is a small percentage of the articles bought on installment credit reclaimed. Data discloses the wide increase in the list of articles which may be secured on the installment basis, until even doctor and hospital bills may be met in some instances under a regularized part-payment basis.

Americans really are efficient. Shakespeare needed thousands of words to express his ideas, and they get along with "Oh, yeah."

OFFICERS CHOSEN AT CAMP GROUNDS

The greatest camp in the history of the Association is drawing to a close on the United Brethren Camp Grounds. More people have attended, more campers and the most spiritual services have made this meeting the best. Dr. O. E. Williams has preached two wonderful sermons a day—and the music has been a great drawing card. People of all denominations have fellowshiped together and taken part in the meetings and filled the pulpit. Thursday was missionary day and Rev. Edward Thomas of Jackson, a Presbyterian minister, brought the message. There was also a missionary Round Table conducted by Miss Alice Bell and a missionary clinic, led by Miss Margaret Meyer, a returned missionary from South America. Thomas Carter, an ex-convict, will preach Friday morning and on Saturday there will be an emersion service at Salt Creek Run at 10:30.

The annual stockholders meeting was held Wednesday and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, Rev. B. C. Rife, Jackson; vice president, Rev. Ernest Seymour, Jackson; secretary, Rev. Lewis Hampshire, Ashville; treasurer, P. H. Lefler, Circleville; new trustees, M. C. Kirkwood, Circleville, Rev. Don Falkenburg, Columbus; advisory committee, Rev. William Kuhn, Wollston, and Rev. M. R. White, Chillicothe.

A new organization was also formulated on the Camp Ground, called the "Ladies Auxiliary of Stoutsville Camp Ground"—consisting of the ladies that camp yearly for the purpose of purchasing supplies and attending to the details of camp life. The following officers were elected: president, Mrs. Abbie Gusman, Circleville; vice president, Mrs. Clayton, Westerville; secretary, Mrs. Bessie Long and treasurer, Mrs. Myrtle Trimmer, Circleville.

The government, which taxes cigarettes six cents a pack, is investigating to determine why the consumer is charged from eight to nine cents a pack, plus tax.

Cult Canonizes Valentino Five Years After Demise

NEW YORK.—During the five years since the death of Rudolph Valentino an international cult has sprung up through which the former "great lover" of the screen is being canonized as a saint and benefactor.

The anniversary of his birth and death have been celebrated this year with special masses in London, Paris, Stockholm, Castellana and even as far as Calcutta, India. The Valentino Association in London is endowing baby wards in hospitals in his name; and an international Valentino memorial has been unveiled in Hollywood.

"Rudy has been cast in his strangest role—that of a benefactor of all mankind," says an article in the September issue of Picture Play magazine announcing the results of a survey of the Valentino memorial movement. "The spirit of the sheik of sheiks, the rajah of sex appeal, seems today to be hovering over the earth as a saint. As one of the phantom horsemen, he seems to be galloping up and down the world inspiring his 1931 worshippers to dedicate baby wards and give Easter eggs to crippled children."

Quoting from an appeal issued by the Valentino Association, officers the following: "Among the most hysterical funeral mortal man ever had. Everybody helped. Pola Negri deserted a set and dashed East, throwing A-1 tantrums at strategic points along the way. Ambulances were provided for women who wanted to contribute fainting fits. All this was promoted to stimulate sales of his names of those who have benefited mankind, a high and honored place will be accorded that of Valentino.... His generosity was proverbial, bringing pleasure, romance and beautiful memories to millions which the years can neither tarnish nor destroy.... In addition to the gratitude of those he helped personally is that of an ever-increasing number of men, women and children who in his name are receiving happiness, healing, and sometimes their very lives."

Declaring that Valentino possessed "sex menace—something more fascinating to women than mere sex appeal" Picture Play says: "But in the present stage, Rudy is no longer the sheik. He inspires something quite different from thrilling romance. It is his saintliness now that glows like a white flame. What is the cause of his glorification? Why the growing near-religious Valentino following that observes the anniversaries of his birth and death with song, prayer and charitable acts?"

"Hailed as the great lover, Valentino in life became the subject of the world's silliest interviews. Later, he was pointed out as the shining example of artistic temperament and became Hollywood's prodigal son. With his name a household word, there came his sudden death. People went wild; aided by high-powered publicity and showmanship, and by every newspaper in the land, he had the photos and pictures, with such good results that a half-million dead has been changed into a $100,000 estate. Thus passed the most glamorous hero of the screen."

Burn Up Stars For Fast Profit

HOLLYWOOD.—The motion picture industry is adding an inexcusable and wanton waste of talent to its wastefulness with money and material.

"The Hollywood studios are burning up their stars like so many useless shavings," says an article in the current issue of Picture Play magazine. "They spend years and hundreds of thousands of dollars in developing a Clara Bow, a Charles Rogers, a John Gilbert. Then they put them in too many pictures in too rapid succession. Then destroy them by trying to cash in on them too fast. They use them up, exhaust their commercial value in the shortest possible period and then discard them. Hollywood is murdering its talent, wantonly and wastefully, and sometimes maliciously."

"After his first big success, the star is apt to find himself thrust at once into a series of hastily made program pictures with mediocre stories, poor direction, cheap production—his name is supposed to be big enough to carry a poor picture. The producer is cashing in on his talent and killing it."

10th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION HERE

Local Firm Marks Decade of Heatrola Heating with Special Offer

Joining hundreds of Estate Heatrola dealers in every section of the country, Stevenson of this city is celebrating the Tenth Anniversary of the introduction of the Estate Heatrola, with an offer of Free Coal to everyone who orders his Heatrola before August 29th, for Fall delivery.

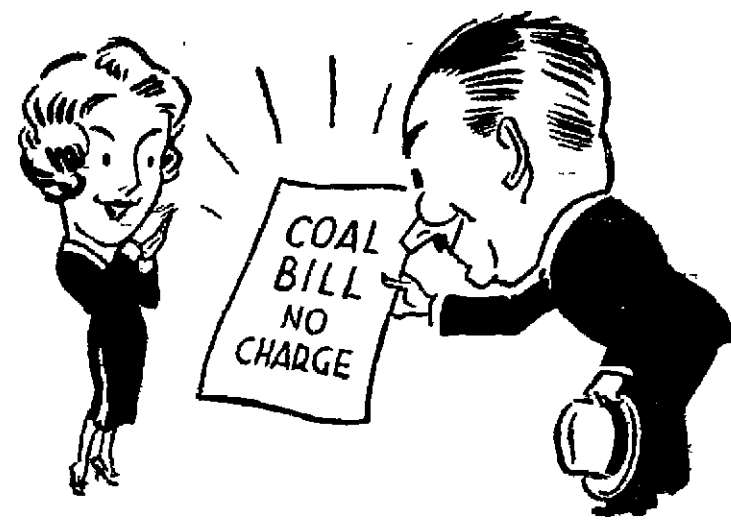

Announcement of the celebration and the attendant offer was made today by Mr. Stevenson.

Ten years ago, the Estate Heatrola—an innovation in small-home heating appliances—was introduced to the public. In a few years, it is claimed, the Heatrola revolutionized small-home heating, replacing one or more old-fashioned, inefficient stoves of the antiquated "oak" or base-burner type, with a modern appliance which looks very much like a fine radio cabinet, and which supplies circulating moist, warm air to every room of the house.

The manufacturers and local agents contend that the Heatrola has eliminated "stove huddling," cold floors and poorly heated rooms.

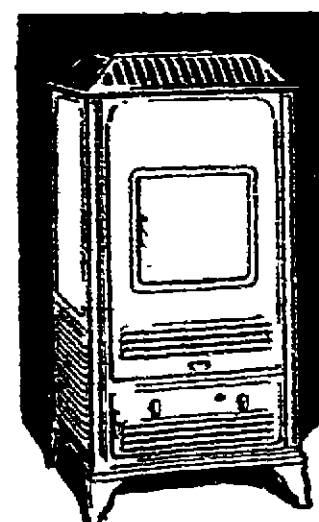

The offer of Free Coal, as the Heatrola's tenth birthday gift, is in the opinion of Mr. Stevenson, particularly appropriate in view of the heater's unusual efficiency in fuel consumption.

A 10th Anniversary Present for You!

This is the 10th Anniversary of that world-famous home heater, the Estate Heatrola! To celebrate, we are giving away a supply of FREE COAL to everyone who joins our Heatrola Free Coal Club. Put your name down now, and this Fall, when we install your Heatrola, we'll send you a supply of coal, absolutely free. That's saving money, isn't it? And, from the minute you start your Heatrola, you'll keep on saving money. For Heatrola is stingy about using coal, generous about making heat. There are inside reasons for this—notably, the wonderful Intensi-Fire Air Duct. Come in soon, see the new models, get the new lower prices. Or, telephone and invite us to call at your home.

HOW TO GET YOUR FREE COAL (AUGUST 8th to 29th)

Come in — enroll in the Heatrola Free Coal Club. Pay only $2.00 down, and $2.00 a week until your Heatrola is installed. You'll get a ton of Free Coal (one-half ton with smaller models). And you can pay the balance on convenient monthly-payment terms.

Bright Year for Aviation
AVIATION is drawing comparisons between 1931 and 1927 two years with much in common, aeronautically speaking. The continuing series of feats in the air this year is reminiscent of a similar series of triumphs four years ago.
In 1927 Linbergh made his epochal flight, followed by Chamberlin and Byrd. Then came the Hawaiian flight of Lieutenant Maitland and Hegenberg and Smith and Bronte. This year, as a parallel to the 1927 series of brilliant exploits, there have been the Post-Gaitty flight around the world, the flight of Horis and Hillig, of Magyar and Bronte, of Pangborn and Herndon, Boardman and Polando, of Jones and Robbins, and the Lindberghs.
This year's flights have achieved longer distances and established new records for speed, reflecting four years of airplane development, and increased knowledge of air navigation.

May 1931 have all the successes of 1927 and more, but may it also escape the disasters and tragedies 1927. The 1927 victories were followed by tragic failures. There was the overwhelming disaster to the Dole Derby, and the tragic attempts of Elsie Mackay, the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, J. B. Hill, Lloyd Bertaud, Redfern, Metcalfe and Tully.

Foolhardy overconfidence leading to unpreparedness and unnecessary risks were responsible for most of those failures of four years ago, but those desperate chances would not have been taken had not the earlier successes made the thing seem child's play. Fliers should be cautioned against being led into the same mistake by this year's successes.

Style Swing Back
FEMININE fashions have gone romantic. Fall hats belong to the Second Empire and Victorian periods, while gowns and coats have reverted to the jabot, umbrella, and puffed sleeves. Miss Fall of 1931 will look as if she had just stepped out of an old-fashioned family photograph album.

The "poured in" silhouette is to be the things, and plump ladies will have to take to stays while the season of putting slim girls, accustomed to the freedom of loose, short frocks, into princess gowns.

They said it couldn't be done; that femininity, emancipated from longdresses, corsets and fussy, effeminate hats, would never be enslaved by them. But Paris has spoken and the weaker sex meekly, almost gladly, obeys.
Marked though the transformation is, it is not complete. There has been a transition from realism—the naked truth—to romance—a figment of the imagination. But the modern, athletic girl doesn't belong in the graceful, whimsical costume of romanticism. She is in out of place, and probably feels so.

Paris, nor London, nor Fifth Avenue, can not make a dent in conservative masculine attire, but if Paris orders heavy upholstery on a steel frame for the ladies they will take that too, just as they took skirts, bobbed hair and tight-fitting little hats. It seems impossible to a man: with a woman it is the natural thing.

The Tide is turning
SUMMER slump is a reality. Whether excusable or avoidable. Mid-Summer dullness is a normal condition. But this summer has demonstrated that summer recovery is possible after a poor spring and winter.
Reports of 184 large industrial enterprises show aggregate profits for the June quarter of this year 25.6 per cent above the first three months of the year, while last year their gain was only 5.1 per cent.
Railroads and industrials show an increase in net for the summer that indicate that the ebb tide has run its course and the flow is just beginning to sweep in.
Textile and shoe factories have staged a remarkable summer comeback. New England is brighter industrially than for several years. Steel production shows a slight gain in spite of automobile factory shut-downs and railroad retrenchments.
Conditions generally can be measured with gratifying results, with that new product of business, electric power consumption, which is now only 1.9 per cent behind July of last year.

"MAKE-BELIEVE" by FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1930, by Faith Baldwin Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Pretty Mary Lou Thurston pretends she is Delight Harford to help Travers Lorrimer, shell-shocked son of the wealthy Margaret Lorrimer, regain his health. Travers had mistaken Mary Lou for Delight, whom he is supposed to have married in England. No trace can be found of Delight. Travers agrees to start all over with friendship. Months of happy companionship follow with Travers more in love with Delight than ever. At Christmas he presents Mary Lou with a sapphire ring, referring to her not wearing the "seal" ring. This leads Mary Lou to believe that he really married Delight, using a seal ring. Mary Lou loves Travers and finds deception hard.

CHAPTER XXXI.
"IT'S all been the best possible thing that could have happened to him," Matthews told her, "you—and your healthy, normal interest in life, the routine he has followed, through you, his encounter with McEwan. He's won a lot of victories over himself, and we have to give him credit for them. To a sound person nerves seem something to be dismissed with a gesture of contempt or a joke, as something which really does not exist save in the imagination. But they are perfectly real and play wretched tricks on their miserable owners. Nerve-ridden people suffer incredibly and with reality."
Mary Lou had an opportunity to observe the truth of this within a few months.
The winter had passed with amazing rapidity. There was always plenty to do in Westwood. Jenny Wynne had become Mary Lou's close friend—the first really intimate friend she had ever had of her own age. They were together a great deal and, for the first time in several years, Jenny had been weaned away from her racing to and fro for no good purpose and no particular reason. She had even refused to accompany her parents to Palm Beach for the entire season, promising them vaguely to "run down for a week or so later," and so, after a conference with Mrs. Lorrimer, she had moved over to Westwood, with bag and baggage, while the Wynnes were away.

Dreams Come True
This was nice for Larry, who continued to tear out for no good reason, when he was not able, to frantically phone Jenny that as he would have an hour of she'd better meet him in town!
But the Wynnes insisted that Jenny come south for the last two weeks in February.
"I don't want to," said Jenny to Mrs. Lorrimer. "It's too stupid! Can't Delight come too, and Travers? That wouldn't be so bad. Why don't you all come. Aunt Margaret, for two weeks holiday?"
"Can't," Mrs. Lorrimer said, smiling. "I've too much to do here, for since Travers has been so like himself I've taken upon my ancient shoulders the burden of several chairmanships of charity committees. I think that a change would do both Travers and Delight good, however. Suppose they go down with you, if your mother has room for extra guests."
"Room? The place is a barn, sighed Jenny. "A Spanish barn, or don't they have barns in Spain? Do persuade 'em to come with me, Aunt Margaret. I can't imagine anything quite so swell, as long as I have to go to it!"
Mary Lou was approached with the proposition. Her eyes shone like a child's. Two weeks at Palm Beach—the place she'd read about even dreamed about—two weeks. "If I had known you would have liked to go so much," Mrs. Lorrimer told her, "I would have arranged to take a house there. Well, next season, maybe."

Next season! Mary Lou's heart almost stopped beating. Did Mrs. Lorrimer expect her to stay on indefinitely, now that Lorrimer seemed so like himself? But she couldn't stay, once the truth was known. And when was he to be told the truth? She murmured something of this and Mrs. Lorrimer looked at her affectionately. "Not yet," she said. "Dr. Matthews thinks now that we've come so far we mustn't risk losing ground."

The Right to Love.
But Mary Lou wondered how much more she could endure of his meanness and his unspoken wooing, his mute plea for response. She was getting a little thin, losing some of her bright color and sleeping rather badly. It was very difficult when everything in her, every nerve and fiber, called out to surrender, to snatch at happiness if only for an hour, to tell him that she loved him, to feel his arms about her and then, if need be, to run away, where he could never find her, to flog the fact of her deception in her face.

Lorrimer consented easily to the short holiday. He thought that perhaps in that atmosphere of blue and gold and rustling palms and soft, fragrant winds this little obstinate love of his might succumb, might listen to him, might answer as he desired. For South, all nature would conspire with his longing and against her pride.
The Wynnes, telegraphed to, responded nobly. Their lovely, big house on Lake Worth was open for the three who arrived there one February morning. Mary Lou had come armed or armored with new frocks of the fragile, pastel evening and afternoon sort and the gay-sweatered sport kind, for which Mrs. Lorrimer had wildly shopped a few days before they left.
She was instantly popular with the Wynnes' many friends, and had a perfectly wonderful time—dancing and tea, sailing and motoring, fishing and swimming. She wished the two weeks could last forever, despite Jenny's fretting; for Jenny's heart was back in town. But Larry took no chances of being forgotten. Wire reached his

Jenny every day, and absurd letters scrawled with jagged blue pencil on yellow copy paper. He was forever warning her, "Beware the idle rich, of the male and susceptible variety," Larry wired. "They are up to no good. Remember I am waiting, poor but dishonest, for your return."
Lorrimer was glad to be once more in the sunshine. He golfed, played tennis and swam. But he was disappointed, that he never seemed to be alone with Mary Lou. She attracted young people in amazing and light-hearted number. And so he complained to her, one night, when a moon rode silver over the lake, and they were coming back in the Wynnes' fast boat from a houseboat party.
"I never see you alone," "Oh, yes you do, Larry!" "When?" he inquired. "We golfed alone this morning," she said.
"With about 600 other people, not including caddies," he reminded her. "Delight, are you purposely avoiding being alone with me?"

She did not answer, and the silence grew very oppressive, and she was relieved and glad when Jenny sat down beside her and interrupted it with a huge sigh.
"Golly, I'm half dead. This social life will kill me. I'll be glad to get back to town."
"Town?" asked Mary Lou. "Don't be simple, darling," was Jenny's reply.

Bad News.
Jenny and some of her friends had taken several flights in the commercial seaplanes on Lake Worth. Mary Lou had wanted to go, too, but when she mentioned it, Lorrimer's distress was so evident that she relinquished the opportunity.
"Please," he begged, "I don't ask much of you, Delight, but I can't endure to have you go."
"You come with me," she urged on an impulse.
He went quite white.
"I can't," he told her, low. "Think me a coward if you wish, but I can't. It's beyond me."
So she did not go or plan to go, until the telegram came from Doctor Matthews.
"Margaret has had an accident," it read, "and is ill, having fallen and broken her arm. She suffers considerably from shock. Tell Travers. Advise you to return at once."

Nation's Youth Opens Tuberculosis Campaign

Dr. Copeland Approves the Latest Organized Movement Against This Dread Disease Directed Among Young People Where It Still Reaps a Heavy Toll

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THE National Tuberculosis Association has announced the inauguration of a country-wide campaign against tuberculosis. It differs from previous campaigns in that an appeal to the youth of the nation will be made. Hereafter, all campaigns concerning tuberculosis have been conducted primarily for and by adults.
It is believed that with a systematic attack upon tuberculosis by medical, health, social and civic organizations throughout the country, the disease may be decreased materially. There can be no doubt of its educational value.
In New York State within the

past year, there has been the inauguration of a similar campaign against diphtheria. Within a comparatively short period of time, it has been estimated that diphtheria cases have declined from 4,370 to 1,613. This is a decrease of 63.5 per cent in five years. The number of deaths has declined from 337 to 144, a decrease of 57 per cent.
The significance and value of an organized campaign is amply demonstrated by these results. Thirty-one cities having no anti-diphtheria campaigns, have an increase in the death rate from diphtheria. It is hoped that these organized campaigns against such preventable diseases as diphtheria, and in many instances, tuberculosis, will result eventually in their complete eradication.
Tuberculosis still remains one of mankind's chief enemies. It is particularly the foe of youth, and its toll far exceeds that which modern medicine should permit.
As I see it, we should encourage these movements against disease. They call attention to the seriousness of neglect and the simplicity of prevention. The prospect of success is so great we can enter upon the work with enthusiasm.

A.—This is probably due to a rheumatic condition. Try to find the underlying cause first of all. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.
Q.—What would you advise for a itching scalp—my hair is very oily a few days after shampooing?
A.—The treatment depends upon the underlying cause. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.
Q.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. The condition of the scalp and hair reflects the general condition to a great extent. (Circle 131, to Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

PRIZE TROUT FOR ANGLERS
WINSTED, Conn.—Anglers will have something to fish for next spring. Two trout weighing over six pounds each are to be liberated this fall, each equipped with suitable tags. If an angler catches one of the fish with an artificial fly, he will be given $20 in cash. Caught with bait the fish will bring $10. Thomas M. Beck, chairman of the state fish and game commission also plans to have 12 tagged fish liberated from the state hatcheries at Burlington, with a price on the head of each, just as in the six-pound creatures. The 12 fish weigh a total of 44½ pounds.

The thrift and culinary skill of the German housewives are in themselves sufficient to recommend their special dishes to all persons living by the low cost food guide developed by the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture. In addition German meals are especially nutritious and filling, three necessary requisites when the food budget is restricted, the bureau points out. Although there are many German dishes that delight the fastidious taste of the gourmet, there are also many of homely origin and consequently inexpensive and simple to prepare.

Whether the food is elaborate or plain, German housewives watch expenses. They also give meticulous attention to the preparation with cleanliness as the foundation on which they begin to work. Hands, kitchen, pots and pans, and tableware all come in for their share of scrubbing and polishing, and all washable foods and ingredients are rinsed and scrubbed before the meal is started.

The cooking process, itself, is deliberate and well planned. Disorder is as alien to the German kitchen as is dirt. And the right kind and size of cooking utensil is as important to them as any other step in food preparation. But their zeal in avoiding undercooking sometimes leads them into overcooking. With the present day knowledge of the various necessary elements contained in foods, some of which are destroyed by wrong cooking methods, some of the German time schedules should be modified, the bureau says.

The Germans are fond of sour and highly spiced food, typical of which are sauer kraut, pig knuckles, and frankfurters—the sausages which take their name from that ancient Prussian city which dates back to the 12th Century. The frankfurter is not, however, so ancient in origin and is a comparatively recent innovation of spiced meat in a sausage casing—perhaps best known in this country as the "hot dog." The native German variety is usually shorter, fatter, and much more moist than the one made here.

When fats are needed in cooking, the German prefer butter, except for meats and dishes which must remain in the oven a long time. Then they choose kidney fat for it does not brown so easily as butter. Goose grease, lard, and some olive oil are used also.

Noodles and dumplings are served frequently and in many different ways, including soups, meat dishes, and desserts. German desserts are, as a rule, very sweet and rich with nuts, spices and fruits. At times, they serve small pastries, much as we do, but most recipes call for baking them in butter, in one or two large cakes. "Bismarckkuchen" is not a cake at all as we know it but really a doughnut with jelly on the inside. After cooking, these are dusted with powdered sugar and cinnamon.

The following one-day menu is truly German, from the coffee cake at breakfast to the cottage cheese for supper. Most persons will find the cabbage and mutton combination entirely new and especially appetizing. When this meal was tested in the bureau, as are all recipes before being recommended, the tantalizing odors which came from the kitchens brought many members of the staff into the laboratory to see what was being cooked. This particular dish is native to Mecklenburg and once it is eaten, it is bound to be a favorite with all who are fond of cabbage and lamb. The spices and seasonings with which it is cooked are different from the other ingredients and result in a flavor which is distinctly different. The sour potatoes with bay leaves is a dish probably not so alien to the American table but it offers a pleasant contrast to the usual boiled or creamed potatoes.

All of the lamb broth is not used at noon, so some of it is utilized for the evening meal for cooking the carrots. It lends a distinctive flavor to the carrots and has the additional advantage of doing away with the necessity for adding butter or making cream sauce.

Recipes are included for all those German dishes which serve five persons.

Dinner

White cabbage with mutton, (Mecklenburg style), sour potatoes with bay leaves.

Supper

Carrots in broth, lettuce with oil and vinegar, cottage cheese, cake, coffee.

RECIPES

White Cabbage With Mutton or Lamb

2 pounds breast mutton or lamb.

1 quart water.

1 large head cabbage.

3 long thin slices salt pork.

3 teaspoons salt.

1-8 teaspoon white pepper.

2 tablespoons finely chopped onion.

8 to 10 cloves.

Wipe the meat and cut in medium sized pieces. Add to the water, partly cover and simmer until the meat is tender. Drain and reserve the broth. Cut the meat from the bones in small pieces and discard excess fat. Remove the outer leaves from the cabbage. Wash and cut the head in eighths, leaving a rim of the heart to hold the leaves together.

Lay the three strips of pork in the bottom of a large heavy pan and heat the pork for a few minutes to fry out the fat. Over the pork, make an alternate layer of cabbage and meat. Season with the salt, pepper, onion, and cloves. Continue until all ingredients are used and have a layer of the cabbage on top. Pour 1-2 cup of the broth over the cabbage. Cover tightly and cook over low heat or over an asbestos mat for 30 minutes or until the cabbage or top is almost tender. Remove the cover, turn the cabbage slices on top and cook a little longer until most of the liquid has evaporated. Watch carefully to keep from burning. Turn onto a platter and remove the salt pork before serving, if preferred. This dish may also be cooked en casserole.

Sour Potatoes With Bay Leaves

1-2 cup finely diced salt pork.

1-2 cup finely chopped onion.

1 pint boiling water.

5 pared potatoes, cut into quarters.

1-2 teaspoon salt.

Pepper.

2 bay leaves.

1 tablespoon vinegar.

3 tablespoons browned flour.

1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley.

Fry out the salt pork until brown and crisp. Remove the pork and cook onions in the fat until lightly browned. Add to the water and potatoes with the salt, pepper, and bay leaves, cover and boil gently until the potatoes are done. Remove the bay leaves and stir in the vinegar, the browned flour, and crisped pork. When well mixed, serve with the parsley sprinkled over the top.

Carrots Cooked in Broth

2 to 3 cups mutton or lamb broth.

5 to 6 medium sized carrots.

Pepper.

1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley.

Heat the broth to boiling. Wash, scrape, and cut the carrots into thin lengthwise pieces. Cook them in the broth from 10 to 15 minutes or until tender. Season with salt, pepper, and parsley. Serve with some of the broth.

Cheese Cake

1 pound cottage cheese.

1-3 cup sugar.

1 cup milk or cream.

3 eggs, beaten.

1-2 cup chopped raisins.

1-2 teaspoon salt.

Rind and juice of 1 lemon.

2 tablespoons melted butter.

Press the cheese through a fine sieve. Add the cream, sugar, salt, raisins, beaten eggs, melted butter, and lemon juice and grated rind, and stir until well mixed. Line a deep pie tin with pastry and bake until a delicate brown. Fill with the cheese mixture. Bake in a moderate oven until firm in the center, about 15 to 30 minutes. Serve cold.

CHUTE LOWERS A PLANE

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—Tests of a parachute designed to lower an airplane intact in case of trouble and invented by O. P. Carv, have been successfully made. It was claimed here. The chute will make possible a reduction of 65 per cent of air accidents, now considered unavoidable, according to officials. A lever in the pilot's cockpit releases the chute, which is fastened to the fuselage, in event of accident, while in the air. Another lever releases the chute from the plane upon landing preventing the plane being dragged. The parachute is capable of withstanding a jerk of 37,000 pounds, is only three times larger than the regulation parachute and weighs but sixty-seven pounds, according to the inventor.

Hollywood's High Hats Thought Getting Higher

HOLLYWOOD.—The High Hat is getting higher in Hollywood. Delusions of grandeur possess most of the leading stars; temperament is rampant on the lot; the life of a director is a hard one.

Salary battles, fights for prestige, for the best stories and best directors, beset the movie citadel, according to Edwin Schallert, widely known motion picture critic. "Are the stars getting big-headed again?" he asks.

"When the actors commence to have fancy notions about what they are worth there's simply no stopping them," he says. "Many a player has gone to his ruin because he felt he was worth a salary somewhere between the cost of the Holland Tunnel and the national boulevard system. Or else because he wanted to be the absolute ruler of his career to the exclusion of all advice and supervision."

"Popular stars can get away with murder. Greta Garbo has shown that. She has won virtually every argument she has ever had over money. Greta's chief challenge has always been 'Try to get along without me!' She phrases it, of course, 'Well, I go home now,' and she does and stays there until the siege is decided in her favor."

She is by all odds the most difficult of the temperamental but because she enjoys such a large public, she is allowed to get away with it. It's down in the annals, however, that she's obstinate and thinks more of Miss Greta than anybody."

Few stars survive long with an attitude of high-battedness, however, Schallert declares, pointing to Emil Jennings, who wanted to boss the world, the croft, Adolphe Menjou, who wanted to write, direct and act in pictures. Poor Harry today is unfortunate and pursued outside of the colony. He had to give his home because he couldn't for it. Yet he's still one of the funniest men in the movies.

Believe Connie Will Break Up His Ball Team

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Does Connie Mack intend to repeat his astounding move of 1914 and dismantle his championship club, regarded by many as the greatest baseball machine of all times?

Will some of the great stars of the Athletics—Grove, Ears, Simmons, Cochrane or Fox—be put on the auction block and sold to other American league clubs?

Reports that such a step will be taken after the next world series—we are assuming the A's will be in there again in October—have been gaining momentum during the past few days. Several baseball writers who have talked with Mack have come away with the impression that the ax will fall in a few months on the necks of several high-salaried members of the world champions.

These interviewers hint Mack believes many players are being paid too much money, and that the runaway victories of the club, killing off all competition, are hurting attendance in the American league.

The writer approached Mack in the Philadelphia dugout late yesterday after the game with the Yankees and asked him pointblank whether he had thought of breaking up his club.

Connie sidestepped the issue as neatly as Tommy Laughran ducking one of Victorio Campolo's wild lunges.

"I can't talk about it just now," he said smilingly. "That's all I can tell you."

"If any such announcement is made, it will be made in Philadelphia."

And forthwith, Connie dashed off to a dinner engagement, just in time to dodge a dozen other pointed questions.

Although it is far-fetched to think that Mack will banish himself from the promised land for another fifteen years by selling his stars wholesale such as he did in 1914 when he disposed of his famous $100,000 infield and other stars, the writer is convinced that Connie plans to make a few drastic changes.

That Mack is dallying with the idea was indicated when he refused to deny the report flatly. He did not say, "No, I am not going to sell any of my players."

If Connie retains his present club and wins the pennant this year and next, he will set a new American league record by winning four consecutive pennants. And if the A's capture the world series this fall, he will have won three consecutive world championships, something that never has been accomplished by a major league club.

PURCELL WINS HIS GAME WITH SMACK AFTER TWO ARE DOWN

Steele Is On Third Base When Pitcher Delivers Blow Which Decides Issue Over Red Men; Game Is Very Well Played With Both Teams Providing Pitchers Good Support; Exhibition Contest on Tonight.

Carl Purcell won his own ball game for the Circleville Oils Thursday evening when he singled to left field with Art Steele on third base, driving in the run that gave the Oils a 3-2 margin over the Red Men in a well played ball game.

Steele was the first man up in the ninth and was safe when Greeno was unable to handle his grounder. He stole second base, un molested, and was advanced to third while Heiskell and Stevens were extinguished. Then the stage was set for Purcell's blast that won the game. The effort of the Oil pitcher was a liner past Greeno.

The game was one of the fastest and best played of the season with Puddin' Oliver for the Red Men and Purcell for the Oils tangling in a nice duel. The Oils scored two runs in the first inning and were blanked from there to the ninth by the Red Man tosser. He had good support through the game but his efforts to make the Oils hit where a fielder was playing aided him still more.

The Red Men scored their first run in the second when Strawser's liner to left drove Cotty Radcliff over. The tying run came in the fourth when Strawser again hit to score Ray Smith. Poor base running prevented the Red Men from scoring in the fourth session.

From there until the ninth frame things were nip and tuck, both teams battling to cross the plate to no avail.

Purcell limited the Red Men to six hits while Oliver was giving only seven. Each pitcher walked one man, with Oliver fanning two and Purcell one.

Only three errors were recorded in the game Strawser and Greeno having them for the Red Men and Purcell making a wild peg to first base to score his team's only run.

The game's feature was George Crum's fielding.

This evening Clarence Heiskell's Cities Service Oils meet the Columbus Cities Service outfit at Utilities field.

'Tut's' Workout For Eck Clever

A large crowd of interested spectators was on hand at Event's Arena Thursday evening to watch Tut Jackson, the sensational boxer and KO'er of Washington C. H., who will meet 'Wild Bill' Eck of Lancaster in the boxing card arranged for next Wednesday night, go through his work-out. Jackson, a 150 pounder is the same sensation that he was 10 or 15 years ago according to several old timers who watched the work-out Thursday evening.

"Tut" is still spry, swings the same clever punch and is almost in as fine a condition as he was several years ago, according to the fans who saw him fight Harry Walls, George Godney and a number of other well known heavyweights in Washington C. H. several years ago.

"Tut" went through about twenty minutes of his usual exercises and then took on several local amateurs for a couple of rounds. Tuffy McClarren, 180 pounder who is also scheduled for a match on next Wednesday's card was Jackson's first sparring partner. This short match offered plenty of laughs for on-lookers as McClarren, even protected by a headmask, was not clever enough to protect a number of nose-punches which he received freely and often. Don Brannon, another local boxer, also climbed in the ring to get some experience. Brannon let the punches go wild and quick with very few of them connecting. He also received several nice socks on the nose. This concluded Jackson's work-out.

After many of the fans seeing him Thursday, one of the best crowds of the season is expected to see "Tut" and Wild Bill Eck fight next Wednesday. And this is expected to be a scrap, as Wild Bill is known to be tough. Fans will be afforded means of seeing one of the best heavy weight matches which has been staged in this part of the state. Tut Jackson and Eck meet on this card.

In the other four matches of the card scheduled for Wednesday, Letty McDonald, 110 pounds, Lancaster is scheduled to go six rounds in the semi-finals with Ray Acquade, 145 pounds of Erie. Letty will meet Jack Rice, 125 lbs. of Lancaster in a four round go, and Dolph Hamilton of Erie will fight Pug Leonard of Lancaster.

This card is expected to bring a crowd that will fill the arena, so fans are requested to get their tickets early.

DOUBLE HEADER AT YELLOWBUD

The Yellowbud Baseball club will play a double header Sunday afternoon at Yellowbud. The first game will start at 1 p. m. when Adelphi will be faced and in the second contest the Enterprise A. C. of Columbus, members of the Columbus Sunday afternoon league will play.

Pinto will pitch the second game while the hurler in the first had not yet been announced. Players from this city who will take part in the game are Freddie Watts, Jay Henry, Art Steele, Mal Mettler, Russ Miller and Fox, while Red Owens is the umpire.

The Chinese war has beaten the record of "Abie's Irish Rose," and according to our impression of Chinese marksmanship, it still has the original cast.

Drivers of sixes never want less because it takes six cylinders to give the smooth, silent power that makes driving really enjoyable

CHEVROLET Drivers of sixes are spoiled for anything less. Drivers of sixes are sold on multiple cylinders. They would no more think of giving up "six" performance than any other real advancement of motoring. For them, the whole cylinder question has been settled.

Skip behind the wheel of a Chevrolet Six, and you'll know why these drivers feel as they do. Step on the starter, let the motor idle—and notice its silence. Throw in the clutch, shift into "low"—and feel that smoothness. Change into "second," hit a faster and faster clip, slip into "high," sweep along at top speed—then throttle down to barely a crawl. The smoothness and flexibility you always get are six-cylinder smoothness, six-cylinder flexibility. Annoying vibration is gone!

Over two million owners have tested and proved this six-cylinder Chevrolet engine. They have found that it costs less for gas and oil than any other. They have found that it actually reduces upkeep costs, by holding vibration to a minimum. They know a six is better in every way—and they would never be satisfied with less!

Public Cause Of Parting Of Way
NEW YORK.—Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor still really love each other; their marriage was wrecked by a morbidly curious public from whose attentions and importunities they could never escape.
Giving her impressions after an interview with Miss Taylor, Helen Ludlam, motion picture critic, says:
"It looks as though Estelle and Jack had come to a final parting of the ways. And while there will no doubt be another woman in Jack's life and another man in Estelle's, and they may never meet again, there is a bond of affection between them that a dozen divorces cannot stamp out. It is the finest thing in both their lives, and it is something all the busy-bodies in the world can't interfere with."
"Estelle and Jack just couldn't get out of the spotlight and simply Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dempsey. The public wouldn't let them. They tried every way to go to plays, and go sight-seeing and enjoy things as other people did, unmolested. They never could. Immediately they appeared, they were mobbed for autographs and had their clothes torn off by souvenir fiends. It began to get on their nerves. They couldn't stand it."

BANKER HELD FOR SHORTAGE
Millersburg, Holmes-co, Institution Short $316,000 States Charge.
COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 7.—A shortage of $316,000 in accounts of the Deposit Savings and Loan Co., at Millersburg, O., was disclosed today in a report to Attorney General Gilbert Bellman by Frank R. Maguire, superintendent of the state division of building and loans.
William A. Miller, secretary of the loan company, was blamed for the principal part of the shortage in the report.
Attaches at the attorney general's office declared Thomas J. Richards, a stock broker, who is in custody with Miller, in connection with the shutdown of the loan company and the Farmers & Merchants Bank, also was accused of partial responsibility for the loan company shortage.
Following the receipt of the report, Attorney General Bellman ordered liquidation of the loan company, petitioned for the appointment of receivers, and announced that special local counsel will be named to aid in the liquidation.

CLARKSBURG FIELD DAY IS A SUCCESS

Ideal weather greeted the annual Clarksburg field day and home coming celebration which was held Thursday. The event was sponsored by the Men's Bible class and Ladies' Aid organizations of the Clarksburg M. E. church.

The program included a talk in the afternoon by Theodore Tangman, director of commerce in Governor White's cabinet and an address was given by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown in the evening.

An innovation this year was a special luncheon for nearby farmers engaged in late wheat threshing.

An 80 piece boy's band including young musicians from Chillicothe and Ravenswood, W. Va., furnished the music for the day.

KATY-DID HEARD FROST THOT NEAR

A local business man reported Friday morning that while riding in the country last evening he heard the Cyrtophyllus Concaucus for the first time this year.

Don't get excited folks! The aforesaid words are just a book-name for the common Katy-Did. And in order to give a definite description of the insect the book goes on to call him "a large, green arboreal, orthopterous insect."

The local business man says to look out for the warning of the Katy-Did's cry—"Six weeks till frost"—the superstitious claim which hardly ever fails. So, prepare your flowers, gardens and crops for a "snipping" on or about September 12.

Only the male of this specie of insect makes the familiar sound of "Katy-did" which we hear in the late summer and fall.

FLYERS

Hugh Herndon and Clyde Pangborn today began preparations for a non-stop flight across the Pacific to Seattle.

Discussing their disconcerting reception at the hands of Japanese police officials when they arrived yesterday at Tachikawa airdrome from Khabarovsk, Siberia, Pangborn told International News Service:

"We have no grudge against any one. We simply did not know that we were violating Japanese regulations."

Japanese officials were debating yesterday whether or not planes should be sent to prevent the arrival of the American round-the-world flyers over Japanese territory when, with warning, their plane swooped down at Tachikawa airdrome, without having been reported from any Japanese point.

TAKE PHOTOGRAPHS
The Americans at first landed at Haneda airport near Tokyo but immediately took off again for Tachikawa, having flagrantly if unintentionally violated numerous espionage laws, for the flyers not only had no permit to land in Japan, but had flown over secret fortifications. They readily admitted taking photographs which were being developed by police officials today.

The young men were detained at the airdrome from four hours after their arrival until released at the behest of the American Ambassador, W. Cameron Forbes, who gave written assurance that the flyers would appear before the police for further questioning today.

There was no doubt but that the authorities would accept the explanations of the flyers.

Pangborn said that he and his companion expected to begin their flight to Seattle next week. He thought that the Miss Veedel would be able to beat the City of Tacoma, in which Cecil Allen and Dan Moyle are preparing to make the same trip. The winners will be rewarded by a fat purse.

BEST BALL SCORE OF TOURNAMENT 61

If one golf player could have marked the low score on each hole recorded during the day on his own card, he would have an 18-hole score of 61 according to computations of Charles T. Gilmore, chairman of the Pickaway Country club greens committee, after the inter-city match with Washington C. H. golfers Wednesday.

The lowest score made on each hole of the two rounds was carded by Gilmore as follows:

First nine... 4 2 3 4 3 5 2 4—31
Second nine 3 3 3 3 4 4 3—30
Total—61

Frank Casey, Pickaway club pro, was nearest this figure with a 71 on the 18 to lead golfers in the match lost by the local team.
